

TRUST BUSTERS

Georgie's Special Edition

To all our clients and friends, today is the first National Day of Truth and Reconciliation. It is a day to listen and amplify the voices of our people across the land. Wounds are not always visible, and pain cannot be heard. Please join Georgie in walking and listening to the survivor's stories.

Dear Georgie,

I am very young, and I'm worried right now because everyone in my house is sad or crying. I do not know why; all I know is that I have been told to wear this old orange dress and gather up all my old shoes to take to school. I am very scared, and my brother just tells me to shut up.

Sincerely,

Your Pouty Niece

Dear Pouty Niece,

I am so very sorry to hear that you are scared and confused. Today is a special day for everyone both indigenous and non-indigenous. You see, nowadays teachers must be nice to the children in their classes but a very long time ago, teachers were mean to their students. Today, is a very special day for our people. It is called National Day for Truth and Reconciliation, which means it is time for us to stand up and listen to our people and help amplify their voices and stories. Now, give grandma a big kiss and tell her you're there to help her heal her owie.

Sincerely ,

Georgie

Do you have a question for Georgie? Email
Georgina.Villeneuve@peacehills.com